Cover Image: Children in Rwanda play on a playground they designed through the Power of Play program, funded by the Dutch Postcode Loterji.
2020 was a year of unprecedented challenges for children all over the world, particularly those in Right To Play’s classrooms and playgrounds. With an estimated 800 million children still facing education disruption globally, the work of our organization has never been more critical.

We will continue to do everything necessary to keep kids protected, educated and empowered. Thank you for your sustained support, I look forward to gathering with you again soon.

Under the auspices of our new, ambitious 5-year strategic plan to build on and scale our achievements of the past 20 years. I am confident that RTP USA is poised to take the next steps in building a RTP global community. Without the continued dedication of the exemplary US Board members, staff and an amazing group of donors, none of this would have been possible.

Thank you for your continued generosity and partnership.

Mark Hantho
Chairman of the Board,
Right To Play USA

Despite the immense hurdles we faced this year, I was delighted to have joined Right To Play in 2020 as the National Director. Inspired by our incredible staff, program providers, and board, we have been able to come together as a team and deliver on our mission. We have also embarked on some exciting new initiatives that we believe will set RTP USA up for sustained growth moving forward. Despite being remote and not traveling to program countries this year, I have been so impressed with how we have been able to demonstrate how play serves as a critical foundation for learning, and by educating and empowering girls, we can change the trajectory of future generations. The resilience of the children in our programs remains endlessly inspiring, and I’m so thankful to lead our efforts in the US to support them.

Rosemary Trent
National Director
It was a hard year for the children and communities we work with, and for our staff. But, as you’ll read, we have emerged stronger as an organization, with new innovative program approaches, impressive impact, and in a strong financial position – all evidence of what is possible when a group of committed global supporters and staff are laser-focused on a shared mission of protecting, educating, and empowering the world’s most vulnerable children.

On behalf of the International Board of Directors, thank you for your unwavering support of the children we work with, and for your commitment to helping them rise above adversity to grasp a brighter future.

Dag Skattum
Chair, International Board of Directors
In my time with Right To Play, I have been enormously impressed by our powerful vision for children, our unique programmatic approach, and the incredible commitment of our many supporters. But what has impressed me most is the unfailing tenacity of the children we work with, and the commitment of our global team.

That tenacity was on full display in 2020, a year marked by many hardships and challenges. In the communities where we work, staff, teachers, and coaches used the lessons and skills they learned from Right To Play to keep children healthy and safe, learning, and mentally strong. Alongside children, they fought against an increase in children’s rights violations, created equal opportunities for girls and boys, and refused to give up on education and hope.

Within our organization, teams showed a clear resolve as they rallied to pivot programs to respond to changing needs while supporting their colleagues and responding to needs at home. In a year of uncertainty, our determined staff team pulled together to create an ambitious new Strategic Plan that charts our vision for the next five years – a vision that will see us empower more children than ever with the education, skills, and opportunities they need to rise above adversity and create a more peaceful and equitable world. I am deeply committed to this vision, and looking forward to building on the incredible work of my predecessor, Dr. Kevin Frey, to lead the organization into a period of greater growth and impact.

Of course, none of this work would be possible without you, our supporters. We have been so grateful for your generosity and commitment over the past 20 years, and look forward to working with you to protect, educate, and empower more children in the years to come.

Susan McIsaac
CEO, Right To Play International

Susan joins students in Beirut in a classroom game.
Our Mission

To protect, educate and empower children to rise above adversity using the power of play.

We play for change in five key areas:

Quality Education
In Ethiopia, 90% of children showed commitment to learning after participating in our programs, up 28 percentage points from the start of the program.

Gender Equality
In Mozambique, 80% of children feel that girls and boys can participate equally in all activities, up 25 percentage points from the program start.

Child Protection
In partner communities in Mali, the incidence of early marriage decreased from 49% at the start of the program to 35% at the end of the program.

Health & Well-being
In Pakistan, Right To Play-supported schools saw rates of depression fall from 18% to 5% in girls and from 19% to 10% in boys over a two-year period.

Peaceful Communities
In Lebanon, 82% of children showed life skills like empathy and conflict resolution, up 26 percentage points from the start of the program.

2020 Reach

We reached children in 14 countries in Africa, Asia, the Middle East, and North America, supported by eight national offices across Europe and North America.

2.3 million children participated in safe in-person and remote activities. 51% were girls.

2.5 million teachers, coaches, parents and caregivers trained and engaged to support children’s growth.

11.2 million children engaged through playful, interactive radio and television programming.

92 refugee communities hosted programs that help children heal from displacement, overcome prejudice, and get an education.
The continued support of our donors allows us to run play-based programs for quality education, gender equality, child protection, health and well-being, and peaceful communities.

In Thailand, the Open Goals program creates safe, accessible spaces where girls can build their confidence through sport. Photography by Thailand Country Office.
The pandemic and resulting lockdowns were hard on the children we work with. Being out of school put their health and safety at risk, isolated them from their peers and support networks, and interrupted their education. Girls faced especially great challenges: rates of child marriage, early pregnancy, female genital mutilation, and child labour increased, and many girls were faced with the reality that they might never be able to go back to school.

Throughout all this, Right To Play was there. We worked tirelessly to ensure children had the knowledge and supplies they needed to protect themselves and their families from disease, to provide access to remote education, to maintain support networks, and to empower them to take care of their own physical and psychosocial well-being.

Responding to COVID-19

Keeping Children Healthy and Safe

Water, Sanitation & Hygiene (WASH) Clubs in Uganda

In Kamwokya, a neighbourhood of Kampala, inadequate sanitation facilities and a lack of hygiene knowledge leave many community members vulnerable to infectious diseases. WASH clubs use games to teach children about good hygiene practices and disease prevention. When COVID-19 hit, youth leaders from WASH clubs sprang into action, using radio and community awareness campaigns to empower more than a thousand children and adults with information about proper handwashing technique and how to protect themselves from COVID-19 and other diseases.

Sport for Development, Peace and Leadership (S4DPL) in Thailand

The S4DPL project helps youth across the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) develop life and leadership skills. When COVID-19 started, youth leaders designed and conducted virtual and in-person workshops for children in their neighbourhoods, using sport and play to promote handwashing, COVID-19 prevention, emotional well-being, and stress management.

Through 44 workshops, 58 youth leaders worked with 400+ peers to inspire more than 4,800 community members to stay healthy and active throughout quarantine.

Keep Children Mentally Strong

Virtual Summer Camp in the Palestinian Territories

During the lockdown in the West Bank and Gaza, we offered a virtual summer camp that helped children overcome feelings of isolation, continue their learning, and hone their creative skills. Weekly challenges encouraged children to engage in play, reading, music, sport, art, and theater. In six weeks, more than 257,400 children and adults connected through digital activities that promoted safety, inclusion, equality, consent, and family support. The program was developed in partnership with the Ministry of Education.

Keep Children Learning

Supporting Learning Through Activity in Jordan

At the start of quarantine, Right To Play collaborated with the Jordanian Ministry of Education to create a series of physical activity videos to help children cope with stress and boredom, stay physically active, and develop a positive relationship with their bodies. The videos were broadcast on Jordan’s academic television channels, reaching more than 1.4 million children in grades 1 to 12 each week. Since then, we’ve started working with a group of NGOs to create videos that support learning in subjects such as science, English, Arabic, and mathematics for children in grades 1 to 10.

"The Telescola program helps me to read more while I’m staying home... I like to be able to study from home and to sit and watch these lessons in the mornings."

– Benecia, third grade student in Gaza province, Mozambique

Tele-Schooling in Mozambique

When schools closed in Mozambique, the Ministry of Education sought support from partners, including Right To Play, to contribute to curriculum for televised school lessons that could keep children engaged and learning while at home. The resulting Telescola lessons reached 1.2 million children every day with play-based activities that kept them actively engaged in the learning process, and got parents involved in their children’s education.

In a survey conducted about the impact of Telescola, more than 95% of parents said they thought the broadcast would contribute to their children’s academic success when schools reopen.
In 2020, we celebrated two decades of empowering children to rise above adversity using the power of play.

We are proud of the work we and our partners have done over the past 20 years to ignite children’s potential to learn and thrive. And we are inspired by all the children and youth we’ve met who are fighting for their rights, and shaping a better future for themselves, their families, and their communities.

As we look ahead, we see a future where children are free from abuse and exploitation, heard and respected, educated, and resilient and filled with hope. We are committed to working with children and communities to make this future a reality. Join us.
Meet Our Alumni

We have met and worked with thousands of incredible children, teachers, and volunteers over the past 20 years who are helping to change their communities for the better.

Here are some of their stories.

Bilkis, Mali
Participating in a sport for development program taught Bilkis that she could be a leader. Now she uses what she learned to empower other girls her community.

Gilbert, Rwanda
Growing up, Gilbert often felt alone. His mother, a genocide survivor, left him in his grandmother’s care, and an illness in childhood left him deaf. Joining an after school club taught him to connect to others and gave him the confidence to pursue his dream of becoming an architect.

Fatima, Pakistan
In Fatima’s home village, it can be difficult for women to break out of traditional gender roles. But Fatima didn’t let that stop her. She fought against gender inequality, became a Right To Play coach, and now uses play to empower other young women to pursue their dreams.

Than, Thailand
Than’s parents fled Myanmar when he was a child because of the threat of government violence. Now Than is using what he’s learned as a Right To Play coach to help other displaced persons cope with the strains of poverty and separation.

Angelina, Mozambique
When she was 16, an unexpected pregnancy put Angelina’s academic future in jeopardy. After attending a Right To Play session on girls’ right to an education, her parents helped her return to school. Now, Angelina is studying in grade ten and dreams of becoming a nurse.

Tauseef, Pakistan
Joining a Right To Play program in his school taught Tauseef the dedication and discipline he needed to succeed in his studies. Now, as a coach in the program, he’s helping youth to stay away from drugs and violence.

Dreaming of a Brighter Future: Daniyal’s Story

On August 4, 2020, an explosion devastated Lebanon’s capital city of Beirut. Daniyal, 12, and his family were injured in the explosion, and their home was severely damaged by the blast. They were able to find shelter and recover from their injuries, but the memory of the traumatic event haunted Daniyal and his sister Shatha, giving them recurring nightmares and anxiety. Separated from his friends and support systems, Daniyal began to act out, turning to violence to express his anger.

Shortly after the explosion, Daniyal and Shatha started attending a play-based mental health program that Right To Play started in response to the blast. At first, Daniyal was withdrawn and angry. But, as he began participating in the games and activities, he started to learn ways to positively express his emotions, he acquired new coping skills, and his attitude began to shift. He began opening up to the other children and playing with them, and even assisted the coaches by leading games and helping support other children as they healed from their own trauma. READ MORE >

Brighter Than Gold: Balla’s Story

When she was eight years old, Balla was forced to drop out of school to work in a gold mine to earn money for herself and her siblings. The work was extremely dangerous: she and other workers faced daily risks of falling, poisoning, and injuries. But she kept going because she felt she had no choice.

Sarata, a Right To Play-trained teacher, noticed Balla’s absence from school and reached out to her family to see if she could help. Through the support of Global Affairs Canada, Right To Play’s Jam Suka program trains and mobilizes community volunteers like Sarata by sensitizing them to the effects of child labour and other rights violations, and encourages them to stand up for children.

Sarata and Filifing, a Jam Suka volunteer, made the case for the importance of education to Balla’s future. Their words held weight. Balla was able to quit the mine and return to school – one of the hundreds of children Right To Play was able to pull from child labour over the course of the program. Balla is now thriving in school, and dreams of becoming a doctor. She joined a children’s club in her school, and speaks about her experiences with her peers so more children know how to resist child labour. READ MORE>

During the Jam Suka project the incidence of child labour in program communities decreased from 56% at the start of the program, to 48% at the end of the program.

Overcoming Hopelessness: Kyaw’s Story

When Kyaw was two years old, his parents were forced to flee Myanmar to escape government persecution. Kyaw spent his childhood in Mae La, Thailand’s largest shelter for displaced people, which is home to more than 50,000 Karen refugees. Poverty, family trouble, and the stress of refugee life took a toll on his mental and emotional health; by the time he was a teenager, he had almost no hope for the future. At 17, Kyaw dropped out of school, overwhelmed by feelings of despair and anger that he didn’t know how to control.

A concerned friend encouraged Kyaw to return to school and, when he did, he encountered Right To Play’s Achieving Change Together program (ACT). With generous funding from the IKEA Foundation, ACT helps young refugees meaningfully participate in society by helping them develop life skills, and encouraging their participation in community decision-making. It was a life-changing experience for Kyaw. Not only did he feel stronger, he regained hope for the future, and saw how he could help make it a better one for other children in the settlement. Now, Kyaw and other members of the program use the peace-building skills they’ve learned to resolve conflict and help neighbours in need, providing invaluable supports that make the community a better place. Welcoming Our New Global Ambassador Liverpool FC striking winger and philanthropist Sadio Mané joined the Right To Play team as Global Ambassador in 2020. In this role, Mané will build on his track record of empowering children through sport and education to inspire even more youth to rise above adversity and achieve their dreams.

Sadio Mané

I’m proud to use my passion for sport and education to inspire girls and boys in Senegal and around the world to believe in themselves and develop the life skills they need to become the leaders of tomorrow.”

– Sadio Mané, Right To Play Global Ambassador
